

Hong Kong

Krispace has been a leader in the design and build industry in Hong Kong for several years. The company holds an unwavering passion to design quality homes, corporate facilities and commercial establishments that surpass all client expectations.

This sanctuary away from the hustle and bustle of the city is a perfect example of Krispace's talents and versatility. The client's brief was to transform their three-story townhouse into a tranquil retreat. Although a relatively large property, the generosity of space was not fully realised due to the split level design; each floor plate was relatively small and separated, resulting in a fragmented and disconnected layout. The design concept therefore focused on the spatial extension of the house by connecting the separate floor areas and increasing the fluidity.

The design and material palette bridged the gap between the indoor and outdoor living space, making the exterior garden the focal point of the house. Matching floor materials in the garden and living room strategically extended the lounge area outside, incorporating the garden as part of the living room. The use of large windows allowed the rooms to interact fully with the natural surroundings and this sense of openness was continued through out the entire home. Feng Shui elements were also incorporated by way of specially positioned decorative items and specific colours, all adding to the final stunning design.
