

Hong Kong

Krispace has been a leader in Hong Kong's design and build industry for many years and has an unwavering passion to design projects that surpass client expectations. This winning project, 6,000 square foot office and showroom, forms part of a larger initiative to re-brand Krispace Design. Previously housed in workman-like spaces, this relocation has given the company the opportunity to improve its working environment and reconsider how its business is conducted.

In keeping with its clientele, Krispace's showroom was conceptualized as a design HOUSE in the city, a venue that merges the qualities of a house with a workspace. Here the entry foyer becomes the lobby; the study is the director's office; and the gathering space becomes the various meeting places within the design.

A primary consideration was developing a public presence that would contribute to the field of design in Hong Kong, rather than merely commercially benefiting the company. The street entrance plays a key role in establishing a connection to the city while maintaining the urban fabric of small shop fronts.

The reception and showroom spaces on the first floor create a clear demarcation between the public areas and the more private work spaces above. This has resulted in a welcoming space where working, gathering and reflection are accommodated by a single, stylish entity.
